

JAY GOULD, THE HISTORIAN.

Some entertaining passages from the "History of Delaware County," which Mr. Gould, having changed his opinion, would like to buy up and destroy.

SEE THE SUNDAY WORLD.

The Brooklyn Evening World

OSCAR WILDE AND HIS PLAY.

"Lady Windermere's Fan," its wickedness and wit and its exquisite author's latter days.

SEE THE SUNDAY WORLD.

PRICE ONE CENT.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1892.

PRICE ONE CENT.

BROOKLYN EDITION OF THE EVENING WORLD--ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION. PLATT OUT.

Hiscock and Depew May Run the New York Campaign.

But He and Quay Will Support the Harrison and Reid Ticket.

Great Exodus of Delegates and Shouters from Minneapolis.

President Harrison Learns the News of His Success Without Surprise or Elation.

Mr. Blaine Issues a Card Urging Harmony Among the Republican Factions.

Opinions of Senators and Congressmen On the Wisdom of the Convention's Nominations.

Gen. Husted Nearly Recovered and Will Start for His Westchester Home To-morrow.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 11.—This is clearing out day for delegates and visitors to the Republican Convention, and every train leaving the city is packed. The rush for berths on the sleepers last night was so lively that the railroad could not begin to accommodate the crowds who were anxious to get out of town. Many of the visiting organizations which had special trains made hasty preparations to return home as soon as the afternoon session was over, and did not wait for the evening session, at which Whitelaw Reid was to deliver his address. This was the case with several of the Blaine clubs, including those from Chicago and Cincinnati and Fort Wayne, which have been making so much noise here for the past three days. They were thoroughly disgusted with the result of the Convention's work, and when they had learned that their favorite was given no further interest in the proceedings, but wanted to get away as quickly as possible.

The nomination of Harrison seems to have acted like a wet blanket on the enthusiasm of the town, which is overwhelmingly for Blaine in its sympathies, as was shown in the tremendous crowds which were given to the Maine man when his name was presented to the convention yesterday. There has been little or no enthusiasm manifested since the convention adjourned, and the streets and hotel corridors in the neighborhood of the political headquarters have been completely deserted.

One or two Harrison clubs celebrated their victory with displays of fireworks, but this breaking out of enthusiasm in small spots only seemed to intensify the prevailing gloom and disappointment.

The New York delegation started for home in its special train at 7:15 this morning. Most of the delegates went to bed last night to get at least one good night's sleep before starting. There has been very little chance for rest here since the convention began. The re-joining of the twenty-seven New York Harrison men after the success of their candidate was hardly sufficient to raise the spirits of the great majority of the New York contingent, who have stuck to Blaine through thick and thin, and only gave McKinley two of their votes in the hope that a statesman might be created in favor of the Ohio statesman.

All the prominent Platts in the delegation think that it will be "next to impossible" to carry the State of New York for Harrison next Fall and do not hesitate to say so, although they declare that they will be loyal to the ticket that has been nominated.

doubtedly be lost with the present ticket, general opinion is that the name of Whitelaw Reid in the second place will weaken instead of strengthen the ticket.

Statements have been made by some of the New York anti-Harrison delegates that the State will go Democratic next Fall by 50,000 majority.

Platt Practically Resigns Leadership.
Mr. Platt, in conversation with an Evening World correspondent this morning, was very non-committal when asked what he considered the prospects were for the ticket in New York.

"Well, I suppose Mr. Depew and Mr. Hiscock are prepared to take charge of the campaign in New York State, and will do their best to elect the candidates."

"Shall you support the ticket?"
"Oh, certainly, I shall do my best to elect Mr. Harrison, but with Blaine I would have been less sure."

Mr. Platt is going back to New York to-day in the special car of Herman O. Armour, John E. Millard, his active lieutenant, will go with him.

Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, when asked his opinion of the ticket, was equally guarded. "I presume that the Federal office-holders will look after the canvass next Fall," he said. "Pennsylvania ought to give the ticket a good majority."

Mr. Quay showed very little enthusiasm. Both he and Mr. Platt left the National committee, which shows that they do not propose to take that active interest in party management that they have taken in the past.

Mr. Depew will return to New York in his private car, with his family party, to-day. Senator Hiscock and Warner Miller will also depart to-day. The New Jersey contingent started for Chicago this morning.

Jersey's Exultant Continent.

The Jerseymen stuck to Harrison throughout, and all except two votes were cast in favor of Senator Newell's inside pocket. The staunch Blaine men who declined to join the Harrison people were John E. Miller, of Englewood, and G. A. Halsey, Gen. Sewell says this morning that the ticket is, in his opinion, the strongest that could have been nominated, and he is perfectly satisfied with the result of the Convention's work.

Gen. Husted's condition is much improved to-day, and he is up and dressed for the first time since he was taken ill. He told this Evening World correspondent this morning that he should probably start for New York to-morrow with his wife and daughter, who have been here to nurse him during his illness.

"I have always been an enthusiastic admirer of Blaine," said the General, "but this time I was for Harrison. It is my opinion that the Convention nominated the strongest ticket that could have been placed in the field, and so far as New York is concerned the President will make a better canvass than Mr. Blaine himself."

"Of course, if Mr. Blaine had come out five or six weeks ago as a candidate, before his friends of Mr. Harrison had made their plans to renominate him, he would have been nominated by the Convention with a grand hurrah; but his interests have been in the hands of practical politicians for a short time only, and their methods created distrust among the delegates."

"Their plan of campaign has been such that it has tended to disorganize and disrupt the party, and they were bound to be defeated. The result has been exactly what the friends of Mr. Harrison predicted, and I could have told you while I was lying here on my sick-bed that Harrison would get more than 500 votes on the first ballot."

Chauncey M. Depew and Senator Hiscock express great satisfaction with the ticket, and declare that it is the only one which could stand any chance of winning in New York next November.

Enthusiasm for Tom Reed.

It is a noticeable fact that the presentation of Thomas H. Reed's name for the Vice-Presidency by delegates from Tennessee and Virginia was the only incident of last night's session which aroused any genuine enthusiasm. As a rule the proceedings were listless and without spirit, but when Reed's name was mentioned the entire audience broke forth into cheers.

The news that the New York delegation, which was allowed to name Harrison's running mate, had in its preliminary caucus seriously considered the advisability of presenting the name of Col. Elliot F. Shepard created great amusement among the delegates.

For the past two or three days Col. Shepard has been a conspicuous figure in Minneapolis, and his evening receptions in his parlors at the West hotel have been largely attended. Expensive wines have flowed liberally, and the Colonel himself, attired in evening dress, has been personally conducting his canvass with the greatest assiduity.

Minneapolis at noon to-day had settled down to its ordinary humdrum routine. There were few people in the streets, and the hotel corridors were practically deserted. The town is said to have been worth at least $300,000 richer by the Convention.

HARRISON MAKES NO SIGN.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—There is no manifestation at the White House to-day that the President is particularly satisfied over his re-nomination. He gives to all who see him the impression that everything had happened just as he had expected, and appears to take the matter very seriously.

Among members of the Cabinet there is a great deal of rejoicing. Postmaster-General Wainwright, Secretaries Klinton, Harkness, Foster, Tracy and Noble have all congratulated the President and prophesied victory in November for Harrison and Reid.

The President made a short address to the people who called to congratulate him last night which was dignified and serious in tone.

In answer to a message of congratulation from Whitelaw Reid, Mr. Harrison sent the following telegram:

"Thanks for your cordial congratulations. I am most happy to be able at once to express my sincere satisfaction that the Convention has named you for the Vice-Presidency. HARRISON."

for a week. The news acted on her like a tonic, and she was reported this morning to be rapidly recovering.

The consensus of opinion expressed by the members of Mr. Harrison's Cabinet is that the fight of the Republican factions ended with the vote at Minneapolis, and that the party would now unite and labor harmoniously for success at the polls.

Bulletins from the Convention were posted on a blackboard in the lobby of the House while the balloting was going on. The result afforded great satisfaction to the Democratic leaders. Senator Hill declined very abruptly to make any comment for publication. Other Democratic Senators and Representatives declared that while they believed Mr. Harrison to be the strongest candidate the Republicans could nominate the next President would be named at the Chicago Convention.

MR. BLAINE INTERVIEWED.
(From "The Evening World," 11 P. M. Extra.)
(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
BOSTON, June 10.—At 4.30 o'clock this afternoon, five minutes after Mr. Harrison had received a majority sufficient to nominate him, a Western reporter was admitted to Mr. Blaine's room. He had received no news since the balloting began.

"Have you any news?" asked Mr. Blaine. The reporter handed him a despatch which read as follows: "Harrison already has a majority and balloting not finished."

Mr. Blaine was sitting in a chair by the window. His wife read the despatch with him. Neither exhibited emotion.

Mr. Blaine said: "Can you give me anything further?" A few minutes later The World reporter handed Mr. Blaine a despatch announcing Mr. Harrison's nomination and giving the result after the vote of Texas. Mr. Blaine was still unmoved.

He took a list of the States and calmly figured up the number of votes remaining. He made it 103.

Then the reporter announced to Mr. Blaine McKinley's motion to make Harrison the nominee. Mr. Blaine exhibited no feeling.

"The result could have been expected from the forecasts made prior to the balloting," said he. "I do not care to see the reporters, for I have nothing to say. I thank The World for furnishing me such quick returns."

It is not known now when Mr. Blaine will leave for Bar Harbor, but probably to-morrow morning.

Mr. Blaine left for Bar Harbor on the 7.15 o'clock train this evening.

BLAINE ISSUES A CARD.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
BOSTON, June 11.—Ex-Secretary Blaine, before leaving this city for Augusta, gave out the following card for publication:

"The result could have been expected from the forecasts made prior to the balloting," said he. "I do not care to see the reporters, for I have nothing to say. I thank The World for furnishing me such quick returns."

It is not known now when Mr. Blaine will leave for Bar Harbor, but probably to-morrow morning.

Mr. Blaine left for Bar Harbor on the 7.15 o'clock train this evening.

BLAINE ISSUES A CARD.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
BOSTON, June 11.—Ex-Secretary Blaine, before leaving this city for Augusta, gave out the following card for publication:

"The result could have been expected from the forecasts made prior to the balloting," said he. "I do not care to see the reporters, for I have nothing to say. I thank The World for furnishing me such quick returns."

It is not known now when Mr. Blaine will leave for Bar Harbor, but probably to-morrow morning.

Mr. Blaine left for Bar Harbor on the 7.15 o'clock train this evening.

FIRST INTERVIEW WITH WHITELAW REID.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
WHITE PLAINS, June 11.—Whitelaw Reid received the news of his naming for Vice-President at his summer home, Uphr Farm, three miles from White Plains, and he was up until long after midnight receiving the congratulations of his New York friends.

When seen by an Evening World reporter this morning Mr. Reid showed that he was somewhat fatigued by a sleepless night. Replying to the reporter's questions as to whether his nomination was a surprise or not Mr. Reid said: "I assure you that I had no expectation of being nominated. When I was apprised of the fact last night it was very much of a surprise. I should like to say just here that as I occupy a secondary position on the ticket, there are no reasons to be taken as to a secondary position in the matter of interviews."

"What, in your opinion, will be Mr. Blaine's attitude in the coming campaign?"
"Oh, Blaine is all right," Mr. Reid said. "He is a Republican, and as such he will give me one of cordial support to the Republican ticket."

"Who will be the Republican leader in New York?"
"There you have me. I know absolutely nothing concerning that."

"How about Mr. Platt?"
"I never knew of any real difference between Mr. Platt and the Administration, and as Mr. Platt is a Republican bred in the bone, I think my answer concerning Mr. Blaine's loyalty applies to Mr. Platt's case."

"Oh, I do not see how he can mind your possible nomination when the Tribune's difficulties with Typographical Union No. 6 were adjusted several days ago?"

"No, that was merely a coincidence. I have known nothing of the trouble between the Union and the Tribune since last Fall, when I was in Paris. I understood they had been in correspondence. I had with the President of the Union that the differences would be adjusted very easily, and I am now told that everything is satisfactory between the Union and the Tribune."

"Shall you enter actively into this campaign, Mr. Reid?"
"No, I shall not go into the campaign to any great extent, but will confine myself to work in New York. My throat troubles me, and on that account it will be impossible for me to do very much speaking. My voice gives out very easily."

All this time Mr. Reid was busy receiving congratulatory messages over the telephone and opening numerous telegrams of the same nature. In bidding the reporter good-bye Mr. Reid said: "It is not an easy task I have before us, but we shall make honest and happy successful endeavors to win."

National Committee Chairmanship.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
MINNEAPOLIS, June 11.—The first thing done by the National Committee was to unanimously choose J. B. Clarkson temporary chairman of the Committee, and M. H. De Young temporary secretary.

The Committee will meet at Washington June 27, when a permanent organization will be effected. Mr. Clarkson was named for the place by Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, in a highly complimentary speech. It is not certain Mr. Clarkson would be willing to accept the place permanently.

It is customary for the nominee for President to be permitted to express his preference before the Permanent Chairman is decided upon.

The new National Committee continues in the control of the men who have influenced it for the past four years. This fact was developed when the Alabama contest was renewed in a new form—whether Youngblood or Parsons, the candidate of the McKinley faction in Alabama, should represent that State. It was decided in favor of Youngblood by a vote of about 20 to 21.

This was regarded as a test between the element represented by Quay and Clarkson and those opposed to them in the late contest.

highly complimentary speech. It is not certain Mr. Clarkson would be willing to accept the place permanently.

It is customary for the nominee for President to be permitted to express his preference before the Permanent Chairman is decided upon.

The new National Committee continues in the control of the men who have influenced it for the past four years. This fact was developed when the Alabama contest was renewed in a new form—whether Youngblood or Parsons, the candidate of the McKinley faction in Alabama, should represent that State. It was decided in favor of Youngblood by a vote of about 20 to 21.

This was regarded as a test between the element represented by Quay and Clarkson and those opposed to them in the late contest.

DEPEW FOR SECRETARY OF STATE.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—A conclusion generally accepted here to-day is that President Harrison, in recognition of the magnificent leadership of his forces at Minneapolis by Chauncey M. Depew, will prefer to Mr. Depew the portfolio of Secretary of State for the remainder of the term, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Secretary Blaine.

This prospect is hailed with great satisfaction in Washington, where Mr. Depew is highly esteemed by members of all political parties. His wealth and social position would add greatly, it is said, to the credit of the Harrison Administration, and his services would be invaluable in directing the President's campaign for re-election.

It is also said that Gen. John C. New, of Indianapolis, will probably not return to London as Consul-General, but will be appointed to the Russian Mission vacated by Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia.

ALGER DREW OUT OF THE FIGHT.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
DETROIT, Mich., June 10.—An Associated Press representative called at the residence of Gen. Alger after the result of the Minneapolis Convention was learned.

"What do you think of the ticket?" he was asked.
"I think that it is one that will carry the country next November for the Republican party," he answered.

"Mr. Harrison showed more strength than I thought he had. The result of the ballot showed that his forces were much better organized than his opponents were aware of, and I was very much surprised he should receive a majority of the votes on the first ballot."

"How was it, General, that the Michigan delegation did not give you its votes, as was anticipated?"
"It was at my request," he replied. "I desired to release the delegates from their promise to vote for me, but did not indicate for whom I wished them to ballot."

CONGRESSMEN'S OPINIONS.
(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—Senator John Sherman said to-day of President Harrison's re-nomination:

"The nomination of Harrison seemed to be the natural sequence as soon as it appeared that he had a majority over Blaine, which I think was apparent from the very beginning."

"I think that, the nomination being made, all will acquiesce in it and try to elect the ticket. There was far more discontent four years ago than there is now. Then there were rapid changes made that were to be accounted for only by agreements and compact made among leading delegates, but that was impossible in this case because the convention was divided between two prominent candidates."

"I think the Republicans in every State will cheerfully acquiesce in the result, and I hope and expect that we can elect the ticket."

Vice-President Morton's friends say he has frequently expressed a disinclination for a re-nomination, and that he is personally much gratified at the selection of Whitelaw Reid.

Representative Payne, of New York, is reputed with the nomination, which he says "is first class."

Congressman Atkinson, of Pennsylvania, says the President deserved re-nomination and will prove a winner.

Mr. Haines, of New York, believes the nomination will make the Empire State solidly Republican.

Congressman Walker, of Massachusetts, says the history of Harrison's Administration makes his re-nomination a tower of strength to the party in the coming canvass.

Senator Hale, of Maine, said: "It's all right. Of course we Maine men wanted Blaine, but Harrison was our second choice. I think my answer concerning Mr. Blaine's loyalty applies to Mr. Platt's case."

Congressman Dingley, of Maine, declared that the real Blaine men accept the result cordially—"emphasizing the word 'real.'"

He added that he thought Blaine would take the stump for Harrison if his health permitted.

Ex-Gov. Beaver, of Pennsylvania, said that the nomination of Harrison was the best that could have been made. He should take the stump for Harrison.

Mr. F. Jones, ex-Chairman of the Republican National Committee, said: "I am well pleased with Harrison's nomination. I have been for him all the time. Never considered that Mr. Blaine was a candidate."

Secretary Foster said: "In spite of her vote for McKinley, Ohio will be found in the Republican column in November with an old-time majority."

NEW YORKER'S VARYING VIEWS.

The apparent rigidity with which the nominations of Harrison and Reid were received by Republicans yesterday still prevailed to an extent this morning, but the lack of enthusiasm is not thought to be the result of dissatisfaction with the ticket. The result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

Republicans and Democrats have varying opinions as to the probable success or non-success of the ticket, but what will be the result of the election was no surprise to his followers. As far as they were concerned they did not entertain over it because the expected had happened. The other fellows had no occasion to be exuberant, because the unexpected had happened. But they are all good Republicans, they say, and will support the nomination.

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION.

No. 1—Platt, Clarkson, Quay & Co. arrive with the Blaine boom.

No. 3—Mr. Blaine's "defi" Take back your gold.

No. 6—The negro in the woodpile.

No. 9—Mrs. Carson Lake goes to Blaine's rescue.

No. 4—Depew to the rescue—Ha-ha.

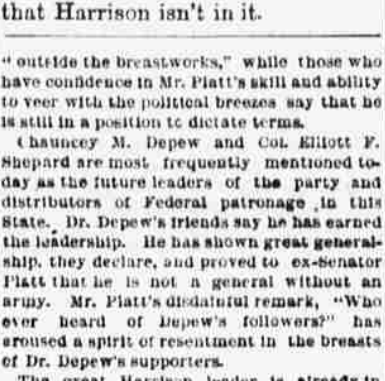

No. 2—Mr. Platt announces that Harrison isn't in it.

No. 7—Depew calls a meeting and counts noses before the Convention meets.

No. 10—The Platt, Clarkson, Quay & Co. effort to stampede to McKinley.

No. 5—Platt and Miller combine. The knives buried.

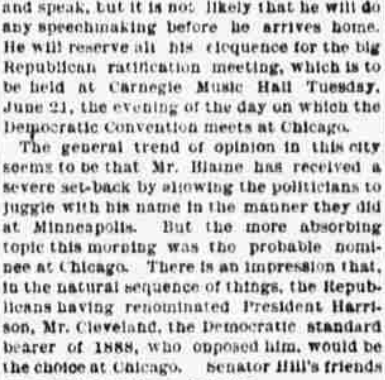

No. 8—Harrison hears news of victory on Alabama test vote.

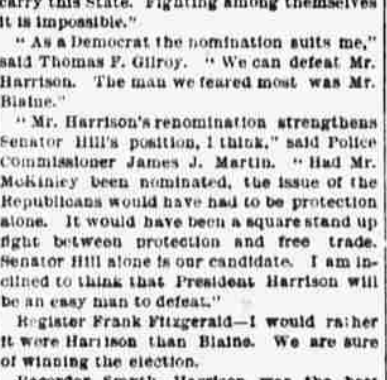

No. 12—Platt, Clarkson, Quay & Co. depart with the Blaine boom.

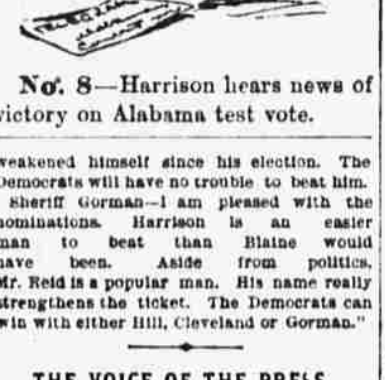

No. 11—Texas casts the deciding vote.

No. 13—Final—What are the wild waves saying?

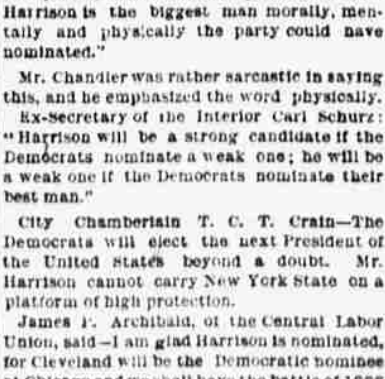

No. 14—Newspaper Expressions on the Minneapolis Result.

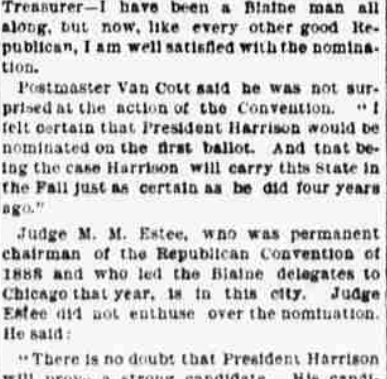

No. 15—The Democratic Opportunity.

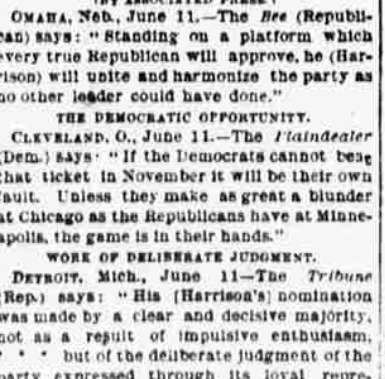

No. 16—Work of Deliberate Judgment.

No. 17—The Tribune (Rep.) says: 'His (Harrison's) nomination was made by a clear and decisive majority, not as a result of impulsive enthusiasm.'

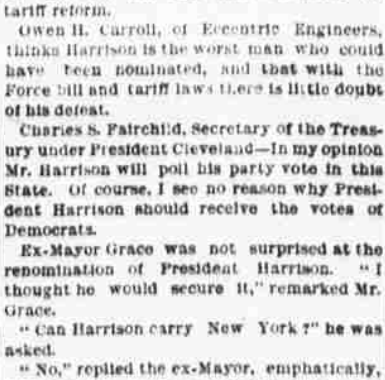

No. 18—The Tribune (Rep.) says: 'It matters little how by what methods he (Harrison) secured this high honor.'

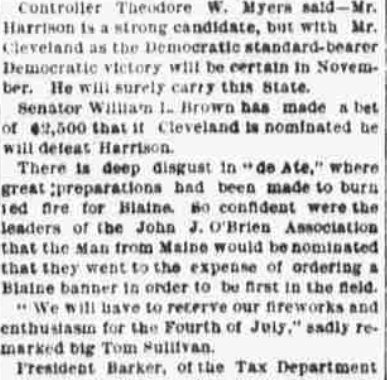

No. 19—The Tribune (Rep.) says: 'The deliberate judgment of the country, duly expressed, favored the nomination of Mr. Harrison, and that settled it.'

No. 20—The Tribune (Rep.) says: 'The result is gratifying from a standpoint of patriotic sentiment.'

No. 21—The Tribune (Rep.) says: 'The objection that was found against Harrison was the outgrowth of personal dissatisfaction of politicians. He had not given Tom, Dick and Harry all they asked for.'

No. 22—The Tribune (Rep.) says: 'It matters little how by what methods he (Harrison) secured this high honor.'

